

THE LAST GAME OF SUMMER

Played at Island Park Between the Richmonds and Washingtons.

THE VISITORS WON AN EASY VICTORY.

The Score Stood 10 to 3 and the Last Chance of the Home Team Is Lost—Incident of Interest to the Fans.

EALOUS base-ballists from Washington went up to the batters' stand at Island Park yesterday afternoon and made fourteen clean-base-hits while only five Indians managed to slap the sphere in the last with sufficient force to get it out of the way of infielders. The outfit for the Washingtons had really nothing to do. They were never given a chance during the entire game. All they did was to walk out in the field, take a picture or two, chew gum and say nothing. The Indians did the work, and the men lent valiant effort to the best of their ability. The Giants fanned eight of the home-balls. Giants fanned the soft autumn breeze that was wafting themselves from the Old Dominion wharf and retired with nonchalant remarks about the bat having holes in it.

West was hit all over the field. In the first inning the four men who were at the bat proceeded to decide the blankness of the score by making four base-hits, run his delivery, and in the second maters became more serious with an appearance of two runs and a single. In the third only one hit was made, and the outcome grew more brighter in the fourth by a single blankone. This state of affairs continued with the exceptions of two little singles until the eighth, but then it was that West's heart grew sad within him.

THEY WERE ANGRY.

The Nationals seemed to get mad in this inning. Metcalf went to the bat and sent the sphere sailing over West's head, making a two-base, and then he was followed by a single in the ninth. Another home. Hartfield followed with a fly to left, and while Springman was doing the honors at the bat, Hartfield struck. Springman finally made a triple-hitter over West's head, and Burns scored. Kelly then went to the bat. There was a movement on the part of the pitcher, a collision between the bat and ball, and but in the spectators could hardly realize what had been done Kelly was in pain about on third base. Springman, of course, scored. Foreman followed with a sacrifice fly to center, and the ninth with a fly to center field.

Metcalf distinguished himself in the fifth inning by making a home run, and Ford and Foreman added to the score. West was hit by a home-bomb, but Foster, for some unaccountable reason, did not find it, and in a perfectly incomprehensible way "Matty" went around the bases and the sphere was found.

HIS RUMINATIONS.

No man of the Richmonds got further than first-base up to the ninth inning, and three of them finished the game to get that far. They struck out, while the others were put out in the work of fielders.

In the fourth one of the Games by some unfortunate chance crossed home plate, Kain was the man, and it was he who began the funning for the Richmonds. He reached his first on an error by Dowd; he received second and third on a wild throw by McFure, and by late's clean hit he scored. Late, of course, went out at second—his usual performance—and Ford and Foreman went out at first in that inning. Kain and Dowd made a pretty double play.

The fifth inning was devoid of a single moment of interest. Ick went out, shortstop to first, and night and West fanned the then. In the sixth Napier began proceedings by sending the sphere to Dowd who immediately threw it to Kain. Wells next went to the bat, got hit in the back, and was running to second, when Kain hit the ball. The horse-shoe was stopped by Hartfield, who threw it to Dowd. The latter then slammed it to Kain, and Wells and Kain went out. It was a beautful double-play, and was executed with the prettiness of clockwork.

POOR JUDGMENT.

The seventh was devoid of interest, save the fact that Ford used very poor judgment and went out at home-plate, but the hit was by far the prettiest home in the whole time. Early went brightly up to the bat's box and made a hit. Icky immediately said, "What surprise!" West followed, and received his base on balls, as did Napier, thus making three men on bases. Wells graciously caught the ash and kept everybody's eyes strained and their nerves on edge, but ten minutes until he struck. Kain followed, and the ball was in the air three men on bases by sending a fly to short stop. Late then stepped to the box, amidst complete shower of applause and the first ball thrown him was knocked clean to left-field fence. Early and Kain immediately scored, and Napier advanced to third. There remained for Ford and his proceedings by knocking a high fly to second base. In the ninth inning the men went out, one, two, three by the work of fielders, and the curtain was rung down upon the farce-comedy.

This closed the season at Island Park. Next spring will its bounds resound with the enthusiastic shouts of the ranks, and in the meantime the grand stand changes and lets us see what other great contests and the departure of the game of cricket. May their lives through the chilly blasts of winter be as serene as when they are hitting singles and home runs, and in the soft, ethereal maleness of spring they will come again and delight the hearts of all who love the national game.

THE TUNNEL DEPOSIT.

The Richmond and Chesapeake Railroad Company Have Not Placed the Money.

Yesterday evening the sixty days expired which were granted the Richmond and Chesapeake Railroad Company to place an indemnity bond of $100,000 with the City Treasurer, but up to that time the bond had not been filed.

About two months ago while Mr. M. E. Reid, the president of the company, was negotiating with the City Council for the granting of a charter, Colonel Brooks, the engineer of the Eighth-street tunnel, went to England to place some of the bonds of the company. After the charter had been granted and a portion of the bond of $100,000 had been deposited with the City Treasurer, President Reid went to England himself in the same business. He expected to return last week in time to make the deposit in the prescribed time.

He was detained, however, on the other side, and is at present on the ocean on his return trip. His arrival in New York is looked for during the next few days.

Colonel Brooks, the engineer of the company, was in the city yesterday and held a conference with the officers of the concern. When seen by a representative of THE TIMES he stated that he felt quite confident that the deposit will be made immediately after the arrival of President Reid, who is said to have raised enough money to deposit the amount required in 4 per cent. stock or United States bonds.

The matter will have to go again before the City Council, but there is hardly any doubt that an extension of time for a few days will be conceded to the company, provided the president is prepared on his arrival in this city to make the required deposit of $100,000.

As matters stand now the provisions of the charter state that the same shall become null and void if the deposit is not made within sixty days after the approval of the same. Mayor Ellyson on August 27th approved the ordinance which granted the charter.

We have other makes that we guarantee to please and our prices are known to be the lowest consistent with the quality of our goods.

You can ask for no lower terms than $5 per month on organs and $10 on pianos. We have the largest and best selected stock in Virginia. We only ask you to convince yourself by calling.
